What is Boone County Homemakers?

Gathering with others, making social connections, engaging in lifelong learning, sharing skills and talents, and being active are vital to health throughout life. Boone County Extension Homemakers offers an opportunity for our members to build lifelong friendships, help the community, and learn.

Volunteers with the Boone County Extension Homemakers Association (BCEHA) work to support the county's Family & Consumer Sciences program and improve the quality of life for families and communities through leadership development, volunteer service, and education.

Club Members

Club members are actively involved in regularly-scheduled meetings and activities, they receive newsletters and program information, take on leadership roles, and contribute to the larger organization with their time and talents.

Members-at-Large

Members-at-large enjoy all the privileges of membership, but choose to not attend a regularly-scheduled club meeting. Ideal for those who wish to stay connected and be involved, but have less time to regularly commit. They receive newsletters and program information, are eligible for awards, and participate in activities as time allows.
